PROJECT

Description

The Alliance's partner associations organize many forms of collective projects aimed at young people: international workcamps, local projects, youth exchanges, European training, collective volunteering projects ...

Concordia's local partners, like the socio-educational structures, also organize collective activities with their young people, especially through small workcamps.

In order to have quality projects that achieve their objectives, it is necessary to train the leaders and the project managers, both on the management of an intercultural group and on the technical and manual part of projects.

Concordia's experience in this area is to be valued because the association already organizes group life training and technical training in heritage restoration for its leaders.

This project aims to combine these two types of training in order to discuss the best practices of each partner and to increase the quality of youth projects through the training of leaders.

Through this training, we want to give tools to professionals in contact with youth to develop youth citizenship and sense of belonging to the European community.

This training will bring together 30 people working in the field of youth (leaders, facilitators, educators, instructors, teachers ...) from 6 sending organizations for 10 days.

They will be hosted by a Concordia partner at Château de Varaignes, in the Dordogne region. The place has meeting rooms, collective accommodations and a beautiful outside to put into practice the different workshops.

Objectives

We wish more specifically :

- To develop the skills of youth leaders and professionals on group management and
